GULZĀR-I-ABRĀR

A rare hagiological compilation dealing with lives of the Sufic shaykhs of India and especially of Gujiāt, who flourished in the seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth centuries AH (XIII-XVIc AD). Although written in an extremely bombastic and inflated style, it is very interesting and valuable because of its exactitude in dates, richness in details, and its abundant information about a great many persons otherwise unknown, but especially for its large number of references to the history of Gujiāt and India in general. It sheds much light upon the spiritual life of Muhammadan India outside the Chishtī affiliation on which the Indian hagiologists usually concentrate their attention. The author, who calls himself

Muhammad Ghūthī b Hasan b Mūsā Shattāī, contemplated the composition of this work in 998/1590 but various circumstances compelled him to postpone the beginning till after 1010/1602. In fact the greater part of his book was written between 1020/1611 (cf f 29v) and 1022/1613 (cf ff 172v 182v, 184v etc). Only once he mentions 1008/1599 as current (f 65). The work is dedicated to Jahāngīr (f 4v). It is divided into five chamans the first dealing with the saints of the VIIc AH the second with those of the VIII, the third—of the IX, the fourth—of the Xc, and the beginning of the XIc AH. The fifth is devoted to the shaykhs of the Shattāī order. In all there are 575 biographical notes (the last one is devoted to the author's rather).

The work is very rare only a short extract from it is mentioned in R 1041. The copy referred to in St No 101 on p 30 is probably identical with the present one. Its contents form an important addition to the lists of biographies found in other rare works given in the catalogues of the India Office and the Bodleian libraries. Therefore it may be useful to give here a complete list of the persons whose biographies are dealt with. In the majority of them exact dates of death, etc., are found. In others they may be reconstructed from the references to various historical events or their connection with the lives of other persons (only precise dates are quoted in the list).

The copy is apparently unfinished. Its orthography often shows that the scribe did not always properly understand what he wrote. The style of the handwriting belongs to the XIIc AH and therefore a note on the fly-leaf stating that the work was copied in 1155 AH at Sīkākul, the district Haydarābād by Madīna-Beg, seems trustworthy.
